FESTIVITIES OF HALLOWE'EN

Many Social Events in Gettysburg during the Week. Will not Lose Sight of the Old Superstitions. First Dance Held.

The observance of the Halloween season in Gettysburg this year promises to be more general than ever before, private and public affairs being planned in great numbers and every arrangement being completed for the various celebrations.

Parties, dances, and other events always start several days before the actual night and this year was no exception. The first of the series of entertainments was held Wednesday evening in the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house at college. The rooms were artistically decorated with corn fodder and autumn foliage while jack-o'-lanterns, here and there, gave a weird glow upon the dancers. Music was furnished by the college orchestra and Mrs. Erney Miller catered. The guests were Misses Stella and Cora Weaver, of Carlisle, and the following from town: Misses Edith Dorsey, Edith Watson, Bernadette Thomas, Reba Miller, Lillian Kissinger, Zita Ramer, Margaret Gilliland, Frances Sheely, Marion Sheely, Mary Slaybaugh, Marguerite Weaver, Margaret Kendeheart, Evangeline Sieber, Lillian Ring, Janet Robertson, Amy Swope, Virginia Tudor. Messrs. Steckel and Stevenson of the Dickinson chapter were also guests for the evening.

A request is issued to the people living along the line of the Halloween mummies' parade, to hang out Japanese lanterns and to illuminate their homes on Friday evening so as to give the town as bright an appearance as possible.

The young people are planning their usual racket and have taken all the spoils they can get hold of to make window tictures. They have a large supply of corn hidden and as usual many bushels of this ammunition will be scattered about the streets.

The stores are benefited by the annual celebration, as they sell a number of Halloween articles, including toy pumpkins, jack-o'-lanterns, Halloween literature, post cards, horns, ticklers, etc.

At the parties this year many will return to the old-time custom of matching nuts, trying to catch an apple by the stem as it winds and unwinds on a long string, and blindfolded striking huge bags of candy with a cane. Then, too, there is the basin of water, and the heaping plate of Indian meal, with the mysterious secret writing of three names on three slips of paper, which are rolled up separately and dipped into water and then into the meal. All three are dropped simultaneously into the water, and, with bated breath, are watched to see which name will throw off its coat of meal and come up to the surface first, as that name spells "fate."

Another relic of olden days is to descend the cellar steps at the mystic hour of 12 with a lighted candle in the right hand and a hand glass in the left. Upon reaching the cellar, where utter darkness reigns, a glance into the hand glass over the left shoulder reveals the face of the future husband or wife.

Stock Company Played to a Packed House Wednesday Evening.

Walters' Theatre was sold out Wednesday evening for the production of "All in a Name", played by the Loie Francis Stock Company. The farce was well received and the company made good. The company management took exception and there was a little unannounced play between stage and house. The sympathy of the audience was with the stranger. Tonight's play will be "The Drifters".

BURNS FEARS PLOT TO KILL HIM

Detective, Arriving From Europe, Heavily Guarded.

EVIDENCE AGAINST POLITICIAN

Declares He Is After Big Grafters, Whom He Regards as Enemies. Sulzer Resents Attacks on Wife.

New York, Oct. 30.—The hysteria pervading political circles since Governor Sulzer and his chief investigator, John A. Hennessy, began their attack on Tammany and Charles F. Murphy, was increased by rumors that a plot had been discovered to assassinate Detective William J. Burns, to prevent his revealing evidence that he has obtained against a prominent politician.

When Burns landed at Hoboken, N. J., from the liner Imperator on his arrival from Europe he was immediately surrounded by a bodyguard of eighteen detectives.

"The chief has received word that he is to be done away with," said one of the detectives. "The tip came from a reliable source. That's why we met him."

Burns refused to discuss the warning, but made this significant remark: "I do not fear assassination at the hands of dynamiters whom I have prosecuted. I am after the grafters. I am after the big fellows. They are the men who are making trouble and they are my enemies."

He refused to consent on reports that he had been abroad to get evidence there relating to grafting.

Burns began investigating New York graft immediately after the murder of Herman Rosenthal. He was retained jointly by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and District Attorney Whitman to trail vice and its relationship to graft. From this beginning the search spread until the trail led to "the big fellows." Burns is said to have in his possession confessions which will create as big a sensation as the Sulzer impeachment and its sequel.

Senator Stillwell refused to make a confession last summer, so ex-Governor Sulzer was informed, because the Tammany leaders had assured him that Sulzer would be removed from office and then Stillwell would be pardoned.

Sulzer received this information in a letter from Rev. O. R. Miller, of Albany. The letter says:

"One day the latter part of last June, when in New York city, I called on Senator Stillwell in the Tombs and had a long conversation with him."

"We discussed various topics. He wanted me to help him. Stillwell said that he ought to squeal on the Tammany senators, some of whom he said had done worse things than he. He insisted that he knew much to tell on other Tammany men. However, before I left Senator Stillwell he said to me: 'Oh, I shan't squeal—not yet. They are going to impeach Sulzer and remove him from office and then the chief says I'll be pardoned.' He said that he had talked with big Tammany men lately and knew whereof he spoke."

"Coming back to Albany a day or two later, I called on Governor Sulzer at the executive chamber and mentioned what Stillwell had said to me. The governor spoke up emphatically, saying: 'Stillwell is guilty and he deserves little consideration.'"

Sulzer has asked the authorities to investigate the authorship of a pamphlet attacking his wife. This pamphlet, written in Hebrew, was circulated anonymously in the Sixth assembly district, where the former governor is running for assemblyman on the Progressive ticket.

Jews predominate in this district. Sulzer had it read when he addressed a big political meeting. The pamphlet said Mrs. Sulzer, although a Jewess, repudiated her faith after her husband became governor, and on more than one occasion in Philadelphia Mr. Sulzer had introduced her as a Presbyter. Rabbi Joseph Levinson, of Albany, who read the circular at the meeting, called it "an infamous lie." He said that Mrs. Sulzer frequently had attended services at his synagogue.

Killed by Seventh Wife.
Williamson, W. Va., Oct. 30.—Mrs. Sarah Sloan shot and killed her divorced husband at an isolated point on blackberry creek, Ky., near Mearwan. After the shooting Mrs. Sloan boarded a train and came here, where she was arrested. Mrs. Sloan, it is said, was the seventh wife of Jud Sloan and the man's eighth wife witnessed the shooting.

$4,500,000 Firm Bankrupt.
New York, Oct. 30.—The Sealship Oyster company, of New York and Boston, a $4,500,000 corporation, was placed in the hands of receivers on an application in the federal court by the Old Colony Trust company, of Boston, trustee of its $2,500,000 convertible bonds. The oyster company defaulted interest on the bonds last July.

Artist's Model Strangled.
Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 30.—Miss Harriet Verndon, twenty-five years old, in artist's model, was found strangled to death in a room in the Mission Apartments, where she registered with W. W. Wilson, of Santa Barbara, a few days ago. She was lying, fully dressed, across the bed. Wilson cannot be found.

AMENDS CURRENCY BILL

Senate Committee Makes Important Changes in Measure.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Important changes in the administration currency bill resulted from the first day's executive work by the senate committee. It passed for later action the proposal to substitute a central, government controlled bank for the regional bank plan in the bill, on which the members were divided, and proceeded to perfect details.

The complexion of the proposed federal reserve board was altered materially by amendments, and it probably will be changed further. It was decided to increase the membership of the board from seven, as fixed in the House bill, to nine, and to eliminate the secretary of agriculture and the comptroller of the currency from service.

Another amendment is pending to take off the board the secretary of the treasury and to remove all ex-official members. The committee decided to arrange the terms so that one member's service will expire each year.

It was decided to eliminate the organization committee proposed by the House bill, and to have the federal reserve board appointed immediately. With power to organize and place in operation any system devised, whether a central bank plan or a regional bank scheme is agreed upon.

FIGHT BLOODY DUEL INSIDE FREIGHT CAR

Two Fatally Wounded With Knife and Revolver.

Philadelphia, Oct. 30.—Two Italian trackmen, employed by the Reading railway, fought a duel in an old freight car at the Belmont yards, Fairmount park, used as sleeping quarters by the gang to which they belonged, and each fatally wounded the other.

Both men had been drinking, and when they got back to the car and started to go to bed Balardino Cozzotto, thirty-two years old, wanted to leave the door open, while Mauro Berliando, twenty-five years old, insisted on having it shut.

The argument developed into a fight, and Cozzotto snatched up a big bread knife to defend himself. In some way Berliando was slashed across the stomach. Crawling to the rear of the car, Berliando dug out a revolver from his belongings, and as Cozzotto advanced shot him through the stomach. Cozzotto, despite his injuries, jumped from the car and ran away. Berliando fainted.

Eight companions of the wounded men who were present, but had no time to interfere, acted promptly. One telephoned for an ambulance, while others hunted up a freight engine that was shifting cars around in the yard.

Berliando, wrapped in blankets, was placed in the locomotive cab. Others in the meantime had found Cozzotto, who was lying in a clump of trees only a short distance away, unconscious from the loss of blood. He, too, was put in the cab and the freight engine ran to the Girard avenue station. There one was placed in the ambulance, while the other was put in a trolley car and taken to the hospital. It is said neither can recover. The eight other men were arrested as witnesses.

"FRAME-UP" IS CHARGED

Friends of Accused Reading Officials Declare Arrests Are Political.

Reading, Pa., Oct. 30.—Political and personal friends of the four city officials involved in graft charges, brought by private detectives, declare the arrests were the result of a "political frame-up," for which they declare Mayor Stratton and some of his friends were responsible.

"Hold off in your judgment in this case," ask the defendants, L. S. Ramsey, city clerk, and James M. Cummings, John H. Lewis and A. J. Fleming, councilmen.

Peter D. Wanner, a former district attorney and prominent in the Democratic party, proclaimed at a meeting of Democrats in the Tenth ward his belief in the honesty of the four men accused. He declared that the charges were flimsy and charged that the arrests were merely made to prevent a victory for the Democratic party in the election of Reading's first council under the commission plan.

HUERTA TO STICK TO PRESIDENCY

Another Election to Be Set For February.

HOPES POWERS WON'T ACT

President Wilson Is Now at Work on a New Plan to Bring About Peace in Mexico.

Mexico City, Mex., Oct. 30.—Another presidential election will be ordered for February, according to a semi-official announcement made here.

From the same source it was learned that General Huerta has no intention of surrendering the provisional presidency to General Blanquet, his running mate in Sunday's election, but will hold on, thinking the powers will take no action pending the second election.

Prior to this announcement it was said that in the event that the Huerta-Blanquet ticket was shown to have polled a majority in Sunday's presidential election, sufficient to be declared elected, as seems probable, congress would declare the Huerta votes void and Blanquet would take the oath as vice president and assume office as president, pending the calling of further elections. This statement was made by the Mexican foreign minister, Senor Madero.

The clause in the constitution prohibiting the president from succeeding himself does not apply to the vice president, Madero explained, and General Blanquet would be eligible. The returns continue to pile up pluralities for the Huerta ticket. Even the leaders of the Catholic party, who at first were extremely optimistic, admit the probability of the election of Huerta and Blanquet.

The majority of senators and deputies reported elected thus far are said to be members of the Catholic party. Manuel Calero, who seemingly was snowed under along with David de la Fuente, expects to leave soon for New York.

Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American charge d'affaires, demanded of Foreign Minister Madero an explanation of the arrest of Leopold Blum, an American citizen, at Vera Cruz. When Blum arrived he was placed in a filthy cell, but as soon as the American official began inquiring as to the cause of his arrest he received lighter and cleaner quarters. Apparently the only charge against Blum is that he is a friend of Felix Diaz, and unless more formal charges are made his release will be demanded.

AT WORK ON NEW PLAN

President and Secretary Bryan Formulating New Mexican Policy.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Secretary of State Bryan said that a formal note had been sent to all the European governments asking them to suspend the formulation of a policy toward Mexico until the United States had defined its attitude.

While England, France and Germany, he said, already had been heard from, it is expected that the other governments will follow the three great powers in awaiting the decision of the United States as to the next step toward bringing peace in Mexico.

President Wilson had a conference with Bryan, and the secretary said they were at work on the next step in the policy that will be pursued. It is expected that the United States first will make formal demand for the elimination of Huerta and the conduct of fair and free elections, possibly with some safeguards to systematize the election machinery.

There was absolutely no comment forthcoming from executive quarters as to just what was intended by the United States, but it was generally agreed in official circles that some positive action looking toward a solution of the problem would be in line with the expectations of the powers.

Madero's Wives Ask U. S. Aid

Vera Cruz, Oct. 30.—The wives of Evarista and Daniel Madero, relatives of the late President Madero, arrested by General Huerta's orders at Monterey on a charge of treason, appealed to the United States for assistance in behalf of the accused men.

Their plea was made to the United States consul general, D. W. Canada, and President Wilson's special envoy, John Lind. They were told that the American government already had made representations at the Mexican capital to insure a fair trial for both men.

With Felix Diaz now on board the United States battleship Louisiana, to which he was transferred from the gunboat Wheeling, he has lost all the prestige he gained by aiding in the overthrow of Madero. Eren friends of Diaz declare he lost by "cowardice" his opportunity for becoming a national hero. They assert that by going to Mexico City he could have brought to his banner thousands of Mexicans who were admirers of Porfirio Diaz, his uncle.

PLAN PENSIONS FOR MINISTERS

Congregationalists to Take Care of Them.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 30.—How to take care of the aged minister and his family was the problem discussed by the Congregational board of ministerial relief at its meeting in connection with the National Council of Congregational Churches.

A committee that has been working on a pension plan since the last meeting in Boston, three years ago, presented its report with a scheme for granting old age pensions to ministers and taking care of families of ministers left dependent through death.

The scheme provides that 20 per cent of the proposed benefits be secured from ministers enrolled in such a plan and 80 per cent be supplied by the churches. The foundation of a $2,000,000 endowment fund was urged.

The committee declared that out of 4915 churches responding to inquiries 1498 paid their ministers $500 or less annually, 915 paid from $500 to $750, 1207 paid $750 to $1000, 823 paid $1000 to $1500, and the remainder $1500 or more.

The plan as proposed contemplates: An annuity of $500, beginning at sixty-five years of age for ministers who have served the church at least thirty years.

For ministers who have served less than thirty years an annuity of $100, beginning at the age of sixty-three, with $10 additional for each year of service.

A disability annuity of $100, with $10 additional for each year of service over five years, the total not to exceed $500.

In case of the death of the minister an annuity for the widow of three-fifths of what would be due and payable to him as an annuitant; this amount continuing to the minor children in the event of death or remarriage of the widow.

GETS $25,000 FOR KINDNESS

Woman Who Cared For Sick Man 25 Years Ago Remembered.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 30.—Twenty-five years ago Mrs. J. E. Meadows, of Brunswick, then a small girl, carried flowers, newspapers and other things to Christian Smith, a merchant of Brunswick, who died last Friday.

As a result of her kindness she is about $25,000 richer. Smith was struck by a train a quarter of a century ago and his ankle was broken. For nearly a year he was unable to leave his bed. Mrs. Meadows was his constant companion. She was then eight years old. Smith never married and his will provides amply for the future independence of the woman who was so kind to him.

MARYLAND BUYS ROAD

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 30.—The Maryland state roads commission has just completed a deal for the purchase of the Union Turnpike, sixteen miles long, for $20,000.

The road extends from Ashland, in Montgomery county, to the District of Columbia line, and passes through Silver Spring, Northbeck, Olney and Sandy Spring.

All tollgates will be removed. The state will secure possession on Saturday. The road will be resurfaced at a cost of about $5000 per mile.

Hazing Drives Boy Crazy.

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 30.—George Fonta, fourteen years old, who is said to have become mentally unbalanced as the result of a hazing at school six years ago, has been committed to the Home for Feeble Minded at Glen Ellen. The alleged hazing was committed by four youths, who tied a sack over the boy's head and told him they were going to bury him in the school yard. Young Fonta never recovered from the fright.

CASE DISMISSED

Two County Men Get into Argument over Horse Trade.

A horse trade between Harry Stevens, an itinerant basket maker of Heidersburg, and Stanley Hemler, of York, formerly of near Littlestown, formed the basis of a larceny suit in Judge Wanner's court, at York, but as no element of crime appeared in it, the case was dismissed.

Hemler claimed that he bought a horse named "Bob" from Stevens for $35. "Bob" was afflicted with the heaves and was returned to Stevens, who gave Hemler a bay mare in return, accompanied with $10 and a guarantee of soundness. Hemler hitched up the mare and after driving her a quarter of a mile she developed such a case of heaves that the noise therefrom caused people to come out of their homes to see what the racket was about.

Hemler took the mare back to Stevens and asked him to return "Bob". Meanwhile, "Bob" was put in charge of Stevens' brother-in-law and could not be returned. Stevens denied his liability to return "Bob" and Hemler then brought suit for larceny.

ago the boy's father invited a party of guests to try their skill with the rod on a lake near his home. Alexander went along, too, and when the day was over he had the largest fish of any caught. In fact, it was one of the largest taken during the season. When the count hooked his fish he was nearly jerked out of the boat, but he hung on manfully and with the aid of the boatman succeeded in landing the big pike after half an hour's hard work. Perhaps the boatman helped a great deal, nobody knows but he and the boy. But in any event it was a great feat to bring home the best catch of the day.

Floating Repair Shop.

A floating factory for ship repair work is planned by the British admiralty, and bids for its construction have been asked from shipbuilders. It is proposed to build a rectangular hull 450 feet in length and ninety feet broad, with square ends. This hull will support a superstructure containing a foundry, machine shop, boiler shop, electrical shop, blacksmith shop, pattern shop and other departments. The hull will be divided into watertight compartments, which will be used for coal storage and for a steam power station, in which current will be generated, supplying power to the various parts of the factory. Above the factory living accommodations will be provided for about 136 officers and men.—Engineering News.

NEW MOTORCAR WHEEL.

Horizontal Helical Springs Take Place of Pneumatic Tires.

On account of the unavoidable, inherent disadvantages of the ordinary type of pneumatic automobile tire designers have been striving for several years to bring forth a tire with puncture proof qualities, yet retaining the necessary resiliency to afford desirable riding qualities, says the Scientific American. To this end, one wheel manufacturer in particular claims to have solved the problem. The fundamental idea of the wheel is the carrying of the load on horizontal helical springs connected alternately to the outer and inner rims with ball and socket connections. There are fourteen of these springs arranged around the periphery of the wheel rim in such a manner that each spring carries one-fourteenth of the total load on the wheel.

When the car strikes an obstruction the shock is communicated through the solid rubber and is taken up by the reaction of the helical springs. The center of the wheel is made in the same way as an ordinary automobile wheel, but its lateral strength is increased since the spokes are much shorter than in the usual construction.

Two Methods of Annealing Steel.

The first method of annealing steel consists of heating it slowly to a dull cherry red and then removing it from the fire and trying the heat with a soft stick. When the steel has cooled so that the wood ceases to char plunge the steel quickly into a bath of oil and water. When the steel is worked it will be found to be as soft as could be desired.

Another method is to heat the steel slowly to a dull red and then allow it to lie in the ashes for a few minutes until it becomes almost black. Then drop it into soapuds and allow it to cool there.

Carburetor Care.

Time and labor on the road may be avoided if the motorist will take the trouble to drain the bowl of his carburetor once in awhile to rid it of dirt and the possible accumulation of water, caused by condensation. Water is not apt to show itself during hot weather, but it will under other conditions and will effectively stop the flow of fuel. A little attention to such small things will make a trip on the road less annoying.

A Mutual Admiration Society

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Mrs. Middleton-Tranby is a sort of Mrs. Leo Hunter, in whom Dickens satirized a woman ambitious to shine as a literary star and to entertain literary stars, though Mrs. Middleton-Tranby was not the caricature Mrs. Leo Hunter was and lived in the twentieth century instead of the nineteenth century.

Among the literary salons given by Mrs. Tranby (the whole name is too long for repetition) was one where a professor of German literature in a prominent university was to address the company. The professor, who was as unpretentious as his name, which was Brown, did not know when he accepted the invitation that he was to speak to a mutual admiration society. His address was to be in the afternoon, and half an hour before he was to appear on the rostrum he stepped into a trolley car which would carry him direct to the residence of Mrs. Tranby. He seated himself, took a newspaper from his pocket and began to read.

Presently two ladies entered the car, sat down opposite the professor and began to chat. There were various noises connected with the journey, such as the conductor's bell ringing and vehicles rattling over the stones without, and the ladies found it difficult to modulate their voices.

"Have you read Mrs. Middleton-Tranby's latest poem in the Magazine?" asked one lady, who wore something like a muff for a hat on her head.

"Yes. Isn't it lovely?" "Beautiful! But it doesn't compare with your 'My Rover'."

"Don't you think so? It's awfully good of you to say so."

"I love dogs, and the close of your poem, when your dog looks up at you so expressively before he dies, is just too lovely for anything."

"Thank you ever so much. Have you been writing anything?" "Nothing in verse. I have a story I'm going to read at the next meeting of our literary society. I've spent a lot of time over it, which I fear may have been wasted. When I write a poem I dash it right off without thinking, and it's better than when I take pains."

"That's genius. I wish we were going to listen to your story this afternoon at Mrs. Middleton-Tranby's instead of having to listen to that professor. I think our meetings when we read our own papers are so much more interesting."

"So do I. I don't care for German literature. There is so much philosophy mixed up in it."

"Mrs. Engleheart's paper on 'Goethe,' read at our last meeting, was very good."

"Good! It was delightful! But then we are all so familiar with the opera of 'Faust' that Goethe has a special charm for us."

"What's the name of the professor who is to lecture this afternoon?"

"Brown, I believe."

"Brown! He isn't the Professor Brown whose loose ideas on marriage have excited so much comment? I believe the trustees of his university asked him to resign—Cuthbert Brown, professor of something or other, I don't remember."

"I think that's the man who is to speak this afternoon, but I'm not sure."

"If it is I shall not remain for the lecture."

"You'd better be careful. You know Mrs. Middleton-Tranby has her fourth husband, all the other three still living."

"I didn't think of that. Ever so much obliged to you for mentioning it. Of course it wouldn't do to offend a hostess. Besides, I rather like to hear what horrid theories people will promulgate."

"I can stand a bit of spice myself. If this man Brown doesn't advocate positive free love I rather think I shall hear him out. But, since he is to speak on German literature, perhaps he won't mention his peculiar ideas."

"Possibly not, but so long as he holds them and we have to listen to him it would be disappointing to have him stick to his dull subject."

By this time the car had reached a cross street leading to Mrs. Middleton-Tranby's residence, and the ladies alighted. They were followed by Professor Brown—Charles, not Cuthbert, Brown and a husband and father of six children—who lagged behind them, so that when they entered the Tranby residence they did so without having noticed that he had followed them.

"Let's go right into the lecture room," said one, "and get seats where we can hear. I'm a little deaf."

They took seats in the front row, and when the room had been filled behind them the lecturer, with Mrs. Middleton-Tranby, passed down an aisle, and they mounted the platform together.

"Great heavens!" exclaimed the lady with the muff hat.

"It is the man who sat opposite us in the car."

"We must go."

"How can we? It's impossible. We have got to stay it out."

The lecturer, having been introduced by the hostess, cast one meaning glance down at the ladies directly beneath him, then delivered his lecture. It was considered rather dry by his audience. It contained no reference whatever to marriage, experimental marriage or any of the substitutes which theorists are suggesting for the good old days of domestic love and large families.

THE GRANGE

REAL CO-OPERATION.

Method by Which California Orange Growers Market Their Fruit.

The granges discuss the question of co-operation a good deal, and really they are not accomplishing as much as they should with the organization that they have. And yet this is not saying but that some of them are accomplishing a good deal. As an illustration of real co-operation the California Fruit Growers' Exchange stands pre-eminent. There is one central exchange, which is located at Los Angeles, with numerous district exchanges all over the country.

The cost of maintaining these exchanges, which is the total cost of running the business, is less than 2% per cent per box on gross sales and about 3.13 per cent per box on the returns f. o. b. California. This California Fruit Growers' Exchange is a nonprofit corporation and therefore declares no dividends. Whatever is made in profits goes back direct to the stockholders. At the end of each year the central exchange levies an assessment against each shipper for a pro rata share of the expenses on the basis of number of boxes of fruit shipped. This expense has never during the twenty years' existence of the association exceeded 3 per cent per box of the gross sales.

The transactions of the exchange amount to about $17,000,000 a year. It handles for the fruit growers 50,000 carloads of citrus fruits annually. To be exact, its shipments in 1912 amounted to $16,891,489.95. It has 600 agents and representatives. Its telephone tolls amount to nearly $80,000 a year. Its advertising cost $200,000 in 1912. The co-operative plan is simplicity itself. First, there is the local association, usually made up of about fifty growers, owners of about 500 acres of fruit. This association owns its own packing house, where the fruit is assembled, graded and packed for market. Second, there is the district exchange, which is a federation of local associations conveniently located. There are sixteen of these district organizations.

They act as clearing houses for the local associations, with the central exchange at Los Angeles. The third is the Los Angeles exchange, over which and over all the exchanges G. Harold Powell presides as manager. Mr. Powell is a New York man, who was connected several years ago with the agricultural department at Washington and to whom we are indebted for the above facts.

The Middleman's Profit.

The National Grange Monthly in a recent issue recited the experience of a farmer who sold his seed rye to a village merchant for 80 cents a bushel. Another farmer wanted to buy some seed rye and went to the store and bought the identical rye that was sold for 80 cents by paying $1.50 per bushel for it. And the two farmers who sold and purchased the rye lived on the same road and less than a mile and a half apart. The grange paper asks for a remedy. There are two or three or more things that might have prevented such a condition. If there was a village paper in that neighborhood an advertisement of "Seed Rye For Sale" might have saved that buyer some money. (Incidentally let it be said that farmers do not make use of the advertising columns of their local papers as they should for their own goods. Or if there was a grange in that community then some kind of an advertising scheme should have been known to all members what some of the members have to sell and others want to buy. This could be done in open grange or by a bulletin board.)

What One Grange Did.

About four years ago a grange was organized at the Missouri State college, and its members were composed of teachers and pupils. It grew and flourished, disseminating grange principles all over the state, for when a member leaves school and goes to his home community, which has no grange, his first desire and ambition is to call together his friends and neighbors and organize a grange, as he has learned with other things at college that a farmer needs a school right at his home, where he can discuss his mutual interests and keep abreast with the times. After this grange at the college was organized the enrollment at the college increased 227 per cent within two years, and it required fifteen new men in the various departments to take care of this increase. There is little doubt that the grange played an important part in securing this increase, for through its influence a greater interest was created in advanced agriculture.

New State Masters.

There will be several new state masters at the next meeting of the national grange, which will be held in Manchester, N. H., next November. The following will then be present for the first time: F. C. Bancroft from Delaware, who succeeds S. H. Mesick; A. P. Reardon from Kansas, who succeeds George Black; Joseph A. Pechum from Rhode Island, who succeeds F. E. Merchant; Charles L. Rice from Minnesota, who succeeds Mrs. Sarah G. Baird; John C. Ketchum from Michigan, who succeeds N. P. Hull, and W. N. Cady from Vermont, who succeeds C. F. Smith.

Every rat that is put out of commission now means a saving of probably 50 or 60 cents in the shape of grain that it would consume or other property that it would spoil during the ensuing six months if allowed to live.

QUESTION CLEARED UP

Gettysburg Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

Again and again we have read of strangers in distant towns who have been cured by this or that medicine. But Gettysburg's pertinent question has always been "Has anyone here in Gettysburg been cured?" The word of a stranger living a hundred miles away may be true, but it cannot have the same weight with us as the word of our own citizens, whom we know and respect, and whose evidence we can so easily prove.

W. N. Flaherty, 311 Washington St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been of great benefit to me and I willingly recommend them. I was injured some years ago and my kidneys were affected. I got various remedies, but nothing seemed to do me any good until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They quickly cured me. Big Surprise to Many in Gettysburg

Local people are surprised at the QUICK results received from simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-ika, the German remedy which became famous by curing appendicitis. H. C. Landau states that this simple remedy draws off such a surprising amount of old foul matter from the body that A SINGLE DOSE relieves sour stomach, gas on the stomach and constipation INSTANTLY.

MADE OVER FROCKS.

Good Results When Last Season's Gown is Altered Intelligently.
It is very often true that the made over frock is prettier, more stylish and becoming than it was in the original provided—mark well the provision—that sufficient care and thought are taken in the making over. First of all, many a frock that seems far gone, silk or wool, may be ripped apart, washed well in soap and water, dried and pressed and look like new. Wash it up in a bucket first and see if it can be mended. Some women, in fact, buy

STYLISH CREATION OF CHIFFON VELVET material with an eye to its washability, for washing is more satisfactory and cheaper than dry cleaning.

Then let the design chosen be quite up to date and, of course, adapted to the size of the pieces on hand. The very latest sash on vest, for instance, gives an ultra style that will take the eye entirely away from any possible recognition of last year's dress. Again, choose new trimming of such a kind that it will not make an unsightly contrast of new goods with old. For instance, button molds self covered, since buttons are a leading trimming this season, will give an unusual clide and can be used in as large a quantity as wanted. White wash net or tulle, made into one of the fluffy little ties and trimmed with small fancy buttons, adds a delightful style and daintiness, and the vest may be removed often for washing. Net edging to match also makes a very freshening addition. It may be run around rovers and collar, on edges of the vest and is especially effective standing up medially on the neck.

But, as any good dressmaker will tell you, the main thing is the care in making, for what is worth doing at all is worth doing well—careful designing, careful sewing, thought as to the most effective manipulation of the trimming for it is the little touches, as the French designers will tell us, that are often the making of a frock. Then, above all, if the general becomingness of the frock is considered, the making over is sure to be a success.

Illustrated is a Parisian gown that suggests a number of new ways in which last season's frock may be brought up to date. Bands of skunk fur trim the dark blue velvet model, and the drapery is looped up over a skirt of chiffon hemmed with velvet and banded with fur. A broad sash of black satin divides skirt and bodice.

A Birthday Cake.

In a family where the members are all adults, instead of having a tiny candle for each year, when a birthday is celebrated, there are put only three candles on the cake, one for past birthdays, one for the present birthday and one for the future birthday. These candles are about the size of Christmas tree candles and are always very fancy and elaborate.
In fact, each member keeps on the lookout for any novelty in candles in the shops, and the souvenirs from the out of town trips and vacations always include candles for some member's birthday cake. Once baby candles were used and the cake fed with white and delicate green icing. This method of lighting a birthday cake is both novel and interesting.

Baking Tins.

One can have a copy of tin that will save gas by baking a goodly number of cookies at the same time. Go to a tinmer and have him cut a sheet of tin to fit your oven and have him turn up the edges all around one-half inch. These tins cost but little, and one can have two sizes, and they do save a lot of gas.

Public Sentiment Developed.

The National Grange Monthly is authority for the statement that the New England states have a total grange membership of more than 100,000 and hold nearly 20,000 meetings every year. It is in these meetings, where farmers say just what they think about public measures, that public sentiment is developed that makes itself felt at the proper time and place and so makes the farmer a potent influence for good legislation in county and state.

ABOUT OVERHEAD IRRIGATION.

A reader of these notes who lives near League City, Tex., writes making inquiries about the overhead system of irrigation, some form of which he is thinking of installing. Among the questions asked are the following: How high would a tank have to be to force water a distance of four rods through one-sixteenth inch holes four feet apart in inch pipes? If tank were forty feet high would the water shoot up out of these holes a distance of twenty or thirty feet? Would it add any to the water pressure in the lateral pipes if the tank were cone shaped so that the weight of the water might add to the pressure? Would pressure in pipes be the same 300 feet from the tank as up close? Not having had experience with such a system of overhead irrigation, the writer referred the above queries to the engineering department of his state agricultural college, the director of which, Professor Custodio, in turn, refers to a very successful system of overhead irrigation in use at Vineland. First, replying to the specific queries, the height at which a tank would have to be placed to give the service indicated in the first question would depend in a large measure upon the length and number of the pipes to be supplied. Through one-sixteenth inch holes in pipes as small as those indicated it is fair to assume that the tank would have to be a good deal higher than it would be found practicable to place it. The same service could better be secured through larger pipes and larger apertures and with the tank lower down. In answer to the second question, it is patent that the water would shoot up a distance of twenty or thirty feet from the pressure in a forty foot tank if the number of such holes were limited. However, such service could not be expected if there were many pipes. The shape of the bottom of the tank, whether conical or rectangular, would have nothing to do with the water pressure, which would be determined by the distance of the surface of the water in the tank above the ground. And in regard to the last question, the pressure would not be the same in the pipes at a distance of 300 feet from the tank. The pressure would be the same if no water were escaping, but with apertures emitting water the pressure would vary with the distance from the tank.

In the system referred to at Vineland, N. J., a tank ten feet deep, placed fifteen feet above the ground, supplies water to two inch pipes 200 feet long. These pipes are placed eleven feet apart and are equipped with sprinkling devices spaced twenty feet apart along the pipes. In this way 4,000 feet of pipe are connected with the tank. The sprinklers used extend but a few inches above the pipes, which are laid on the surface of the ground. In another arrangement the supply pipes are laid along the side of the field. These pipes are provided with fittings at intervals, to which a hose may be attached. The pipe to which the sprinklers are attached is supported about six feet above the ground on wheels, being connected to the supply pipe by means of a hose. When one area has been sprinkled the pipe is moved to a new position and the connecting hose attached to the supply pipe at another point. In the former arrangement the pipes might be spaced farther apart if the supply tank were placed higher above the ground. With the distributing pipes placed six feet above the ground, provided with suitable spraying nozzles, a tank forty-five feet above ground would furnish pressure to distribute the water twenty feet or more on each side of the sprinklers. This would permit of placing the pipes forty feet apart. A spraying or sprinkling nozzle is considered better than single perforations, for the reason that with the latter the stream is continually directed to the same place. If single perforations are used they should be less than one-eighth of an inch in diameter.

WELL EARNED SUCCESS.

Those who have from time to time read of the achievements of the famous White Leghorn hens of Tom Barrow, who lives at Catforth, near Liverpool, England, pens of which are in the lead in the two big egg laying contests at Siders, Conn., and Mountain Grove, Mo., will be interested to learn how something of the owner of the remarkable layers. Mr. Barrow is today a wealthy man, and he made all of his money in the poultry business. He started in the business in 1894 with twenty birds, while his ranch, which now consists of twenty acres, was so rich and poor that he had to pay his feed his cows. Thirteen acres are now devoted to his poultry houses and yards, and the soil has been brought to a fine state of fertility as a result of the large amount of concentrated fertilizer which it has received. Mr. Barrow put his business on its feet in the first years through the sale of eggs, and it seems to have been an aim constantly kept in mind to increase in every way possible the egg producing ability of his fowls, and in doing this the trap nest was an important factor.

Coupled with this, he studied all his fowls individually and selected for breeding purposes only those that showed exceptional vigor. He paid little attention to the points upon which so much stress is laid in the average poultry show. His hens deliver the goods—fill the basket—and in this particular seem to have no equals in the world.

Quick Action.

There is no doubt that a Granite State grange holds the palm for in stating that the grange is a "social organization." At any rate, it cites the case of a young lady joining one night and at the very next meeting finding a husband. The aged overseer wants it understood, though, that the grange cannot guarantee such quick action every time.

WOMEN'S CLUBS HELP THE TOWN

Success of the "Study America" Idea Proved.

LEADS TO BIGGER THINGS.

From Weekly Readings the Members' Activities Grew Until Entire Local Administration Was Enlisted In One Case—Committees Formed.

Because a thing done, however slight the thing or slightly expressed, has a value distinct from even the most perfect theory it may be well to tell how first the women and then the men and women of one town inaugurated civic work, says Zona Gale in a pamphlet on town improvement. This town is one of 6,000 inhabitants, and the initial step was taken by a woman's club, which gave over studying foreign places and decided to study America.

At first one hour of each weekly meeting was given to a paper and readings by a club member on some phase of present day America, and twenty minutes to a discussion of the present working out of some civic or social problem looking to the future of America. The latter included news about conservation and reclamation, the national fight for health, pure food, play, peace, eugenics, equal suffrage, workmen's compensation laws, children's gardens, tuberculosis prevention, modern prison methods, public fountains.

Then something became evident which was a kind of revelation about civilization. It was found that as these matters of national importance came up for consideration most of them had a distinctly local application.

"The Playground as a Part of the Graded School Course of Instruction" called for a discussion of the need and expense of a local playground. "Conservation and Reclamation" brought on questions about curb tree planting and parking and the local ordinances about cutting down and replanting. "Jails and Lockups" resulted in an investigation of the local jail and calaboose bedding and the local mode of procedure when boy offenders are brought before a justice. "The Drama—Modern Dramatic Arts and Methods," was made to include "The Winter's Offerings in Small Towns and How to Get Better Plays" and "Local Nickel Theaters." To "Women in Industry" was added "Women in Local Industry—Hours, Rules, Wages," "Parks" suggested the possible development of two local vacant triangles and their appropriation to the common use.

It was the incongruity of a small club with a limited membership considering alone problems which directly interested 6,000 folk which led to the next step.

The club called a general meeting of all the women interested in town development. Every woman's club was invited, and a general invitation was extended through the papers. The meeting was held at the city hall, and these were asked to be present and to speak as follows:

The city health officer, to explain the vital need of sewerage and the desirability of a garbage disposal system and what practical means could be used to get both.

The school superintendent, to tell of the advantages of manual training and domestic science in the local schools.

The art teacher in the schools, to tell how the local school grounds could be inexpensively improved and made beautiful.

A woman who loves gardens, to tell of the joy in gardens and in planted spaces.

A club member, to tell of the work of the American Civic association and of the work of children's gardens and the penny seed packages.

A woman interested in pure milk, to tell of the dangers of tuberculosis existing in uninspected herds and how a town can go about securing the tuberculin test of its cows in order to know the purity of its milk supply.

Organization was effected in March, and in three months the following had been accomplished:

The sanitary committee had interviewed the milkmen at a meeting called by the committee and had ascertained how to secure the tuberculin test. The milkmen were willing to have the test made and to pay for it themselves, and the matter was precipitated by the owner of a large herd engaging a veterinarian to come to make the test, and finding in the herd three badly infected cows. All the large local herds were inspected, but the effort to secure an ordinance requiring the test semi-annually, as it should be administered, was postponed in the hope that this will soon be required by statute.

The streets and plays committee had secured a clean up day named by the mayor, previous to which a subcommittee was named to report the sidewalks not cleaned of snow.

The children's auxiliary committee had distributed 1,200 penny packages of flower and vegetable seeds and had offered $25 worth of prizes to the children for flowers entered in a flower and vegetable show announced for September.

These were mere beginnings, but in them the work was launched and given an impetus that made permanence a certainty.

An excellent powder for ridding poultry of lice may be prepared by mixing equal parts of pyrethrum (insect powder) with flowers of sulphur. It is best and most effectively applied by using a powder gun.

HUSBAND CONFESSES CRIME

"She Wanted to Give Our Stove Away,"
Philadelphia Man Whines — Were Married Thirty Years.

Philadelphia, Oct. 30.—John Eberwine, eighty years old, a Civil War veteran, is under arrest, charged with killing his sixty-five-year-old wife, Elizabeth, following a quarrel at their home, 2940 North Orkney street.

The police say that Eberwine confessed to striking his wife on the head several times with an ironing board, fracturing her skull.

The old soldier was arrested by Detective Belshaw and Special Policemen Knox and Walker. They say the quarrel between Eberwine and his wife was started because of Eberwine objecting to her making a gift of a stove to her son.

According to the police Eberwine was told by his wife that she intended to give their stove away. He objected, but his wife would not listen. Several times Eberwine broached the subject, but each time was informed by his wife that she was determined to give the stove away.

Later Eberwine is said to have again insisted that the stove should be kept at home. His demand was met with a refusal, and in the scuffle that followed Mrs. Eberwine fell to the floor. Her husband is then alleged to have seized a heavy ironing board that stood near and to have struck her several times over the head.

A few minutes after the quarrel Eberwine went to the door and called Mrs. Emma L. Shuster, a neighbor, and asked her to call his son, John, to the house. Instead of complying with the request, Mrs. Shuster asked for Mrs. Eberwine.

She was asked to step into the house by Eberwine, who informed her that his wife was very ill. She walked into the house, and on the floor of the sitting room, face downward, saw the body of Mrs. Eberwine.

The furniture in the room was thrown about and everything was in a state of disorder. Chairs were pushed in one corner of the room and a table in the center was overturned.

Thinking that Mrs. Eberwine had fainted, Mrs. Shuster ran out of the house and telephoned for Dr. William Apple. In the meantime another neighbor, fearing that something was wrong, telephoned to the police to send an ambulance.

The patrol of the Germantown avenue and Locomotion street station was sent to the house. The wagon and Dr. Apple arrived at about the same time.

One glance was enough to tell the doctor that the woman was beyond all aid. Life had been extinct at least thirty minutes.

When the police arrived Eberwine was sitting in one corner of the room, his face buried in his hands, sobbing. He seemed unable to comprehend the questions asked him and mumbled meaningless answers.

To all questions put to him as to why he killed his wife, Eberwine replied monotonously: "She wanted to give a stove away. She wanted to give a stove away." That was all he would say. They were married thirty years.

THAW EAGER FOR COURT TRIAL

Willing to Return if Jerome Will Not Send Him to Asylum.

Concord, N. H., Oct. 30.—Attorneys for Harry K. Thaw reiterated their statement that if William T. Jerome will agree to try Thaw on the conspiracy indictment returned in New York and will not return him to Matteawan, the fugitive is willing to return to New York.

Jerome has declared that pending the trial for conspiracy he would place Thaw in Matteawan.

Thaw issued a statement declaring that the men behind Jerome seem able to get the ear of the New York officials, but that the people of New York, who are with him, apparently have no influence with state officials.

Attorneys for the fugitive announced that they have asked Governor Felker for an oral hearing on the "good faith" of the conspiracy indictment and wish Jerome to be present.

Blame Disaster on Vacuum.

Berlin, Oct. 30.—The explosion of the dirigible balloon Zeppelin III, on Oct. 17, which cost the lives of twenty-nine men, is attributed in the official report to a partial vacuum formed in the centre gondola behind a new type of wind shield. This sucked the gas escaping from beneath the aluminum structure of the dirigible into the gondola, where it was exploded by a spark from the motor.

Dies From Broken Neck.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 30.—A broken neck received when he fell down the stairs at his home caused the death of William Wilson in St. Francis hospital. He fell Saturday night while going for a drink after he had gone to bed.

Child Dies From Whisky.

Chester, Pa., Oct. 30.—Anna McIlvaline, five years old, died at the Chester hospital from the effects of whisky which she drank from a bottle while alone in the sitting room of her parents' home.

It is a matter of congratulation to all who use country highways that the substantial cement culvert and larger bridge for larger waterways are taking the place of the old wooden structures

SLIT SKIRT AND SOCKS TIE UP TOWN

Mills, Stores, Trains Deserted
as Girl Trips By.

Duquesne, Pa., Oct. 30.—Sylvia Pendleton, demure and pretty, was the cause of 5000 millmen quitting work, two freight train crews refusing to move a wheel and a near riot here, when she appeared on the principal thoroughfares in one of the latest creations, vulgarly known as a "slit skirt," and swept down Grant street, exposing to view her shape.

Oddly enough, the pretty young woman skillfully maneuvered her steps to shat every detail of the dazzling combination of natural flesh tint and perfect contour was brought out.

When the young woman reached a point near the Duquesne plant of the Carnegie Steel company a chorus of yells rent the air and thousands of employees began swarming out onto the street, heading off the unabashed young woman. Calmly picking her way through the crowd, Miss Pendleton crossed the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad.

She had hardly stepped off the tracks before the crews of two freight trains standing nearby deserted their posts and fought for a glimpse of the silken low cut socks. The police were finally compelled to charge the crowd several times before the streets were cleared. Miss Pendleton was also "gently" persuaded to enter a department store.

SEVEN YEARS FOR MURET

Judge Lenic to Counterfeit in the Schmidt Case.

New York, Oct. 30.—"Dr." Ernest Muret, the friend of "Father" Hans Schmidt, was sentenced to seven and one-half years' imprisonment in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., for counterfeiting.

Muret appealed to Judge Hunt to suspend sentence, saying that he wanted to go back to his home in Germany and spend the balance of his life with his mother.

Judge Hunt could have imposed a sentence of thirty years, but as the prisoner is a victim of incipient tuberculosis he was lenient.

KILLS GIRL AND HIMSELF

Farmhand Shoots Daughter of His Employer, Then Commits Suicide.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 30.—Dorsey Kelly, twenty-four, a farm hand, shot and killed Miss Mary Fleming, the daughter of his employer, and then committed suicide.

Jealousy of the young woman, with whom Kelly was said to have been infatuated, is believed to have prompted the deed.

The Kaiser Greets Gerard.

Berlin, Oct. 30.—The new United States ambassador to Germany, James W. Gerard, was received in audience by Emperor William and presented his credentials and the farewell letters of his predecessor, John G. A. Leishman. The conversation between the emperor and the American diplomat was informal, dealing principally with golf, riding and other sporting topics. Scarcely any mention was made of politics.
